WICHITA MARKETS.

The Receipts of Stock at the Wichita Union Stock Yards for the past 48 Hours Were as Follows: 41 Cattle, 513 Hogs. Shipments: 59 Cattle, 91 Hogs.

The receipts of cattle were very small today and the demand for good cattle was not supplied. There was a very slim entation of good stock among the representation of good stock among the offerings. This was a disappointment to some of the buyers. They wanted good cattle of all classes and would have paid strong prices for anything of fair grade. The market was unchanged on common and medium stuffs-little demand and prices low. A bunch of fairstockers today sold for $3.00 and a good heifer $3.90.

REPRESENTATIVE SALES, Fifthe following are the representative sales of cat

The run of hogs today was very light and the quality was mixed. There were some good hogs, some medium, and some poor ones offered. The market opened 5 cents higher and closed strong at this advance. The local packers bought all the best packing hogs. The demand was not supplied and more hogs would have sold at good prices. Tops today, $5; bulk, $4.70 @4.90. Light hogs were steady. The market closed strong at the raise.

Brief Mention,

Hogs were 5 cents higher today. The run of cattle was very small, and there were few good ones.

W. I. Bulkley, of Rose Hill, had in the best load of hogs on the market today. They sold for $5.00. Mr. Bulkley generally brings in the best to be found in the J. R. Hall, Medicine Lodge, had hogs on

In a recent magazine article, Mr. Ernest Ingersoll, the noted writer, says: "The climate of Southern California in winter closely resembles that of Egypt. Its equability is constant, and its dryness is proverbial. The only complaint made is that it is too nearly perfect. Residents bred in the eastern states confess now and then that a rousing storm would give them a grateful sensation. But this sentiment meets with no favor from the man who has just fled from a superfluity of we uses and chilling gales. To him perpetual summer seems perpetual paradise, and to the invalid dreading the advance of disease, the still arid atmosphere is as the breath of still, arid atmosphere is as the breath of

The Whip Dance.

Indians frequently, after engaging in the whip dance, vow that they will never more submit to the ordeal, and mutually assure each other that their skins have been made to suffer for the last time. But an irresistible longing soon seizes them to again realize the fearful joy of indulging in the "sport," and the result is that the dance continues as fashionable as ever. The young men of the tribe then, having put on all the finery they are able to muster, arm themselves with the terrible maquarri-s peculiar whip from which the dance derives its name. This whip is about five feet in length and is manufactured of a strong grass fiber native to the district, bound 1891 around spirally with a strip of thin cane, In the hands of a muscular Waran it is capable of inflicting a wound very little less severe than that which would be produced by the downward blow of a

When the dance is about to commence the performers range themselves opposite one another, waving their whips in the air and giving utterance to cries resembling the notes of birds. Suddenly one of them stops, and poising himself on one leg stretches out the other, remaining perfectly motionless. The other stops, too, measures the distance carefully with his eye, springs high in the air to give force to the blow, and, wish! down comes the heavy whip with a fearful smack upon his opponent's outstretched limb, and a red gash marks where the keen thoug has curled round his calf or ankle. The recipient of the blow utters never a sound, but, smiling as cheerfully as possible under the circumstances, again takes up the dance until it is the turn of the other player to stand still and rebeive his punishment, which, we may depend upon it, is usually returned with as good a will as it was given.-San Francisco Examiner.

A WOMAN'S ODD CAPRICE

UNACCOUNTABLE, YET IT MADE HER SUPREMELY HAPPY.

Sudden Whim Seizes Her and She Started on a Visit to New York by a

"My aunt. Mrs. O. P. Smith, of St. Louis, started east to visit relatives of her husband in Dutchess county," said one of those relatives, a well known railroad man. "Her direct route was by the New York Central's system to Fishkill, and that was the way the trip had been laid out. Half an hour before starting, however, Mrs. Smith surprised her husband by saying that she intended to go by the Erie route. That would necessitate a roundabout unreasonable determination. She stoutly insisted, however, that she must go by "'I can't tell you why I have such an inclination to go that way,' she said; 'but I have that feeling, and I do not believe I could bring myself to go any other way.' "Of course her husband gave in to her whim, and put it down to woman's caprice. My aunt is a native of Richmond, Va., and during the war, being about sixteen, her only sister died, and her brother was killed in the defense of Richmond. This left her without a known relative, unless the oldest one of the family, a brother, who had gone to California in 1855, was living.

"She found a home, however, with a Richmond family, who moved west after the war, where the orphan girl, whose name was Allison, subsequently met and married my Uncle Smith. She was ten years old when her brother went to California, and he was then twenty-five. She had never heard anything from him since the war broke out. Although her father died when she was but eight, she retained a vivid remembrance of his face and manner.

A STRANGE MEETING. "At Meadville, Pa., the next morning after leaving St. Louis, my aunt kept her berth. While she was making her toilet the porter had made up the section. When she returned and sat down a sprightly but elderly man sat down in WANTED—A GOOD WHITE GIRL COOK. AP ply at 32 N Topeka. Mr. Davidson. 118 M the other seat of her section and said:

"'Excuse me, madam, but I'll just drop down here while the porter fixes up things in my section. I'm only going to the next station anyway.' "My aunt opened her mouth to reply, but she didn't speak. She simply fastened her eyes on the old man opposite. He was tall and bright eyed, with a silver gray mustache and goatee, the latter long and pointed. He wore a wide brimmed felt hat. My sunt's manner seemed to nettle him, and he exclaimed, " 'If I annoy you, madam, I will go to some other seat.' "My aunt managed to loosen her tongue then, and putting out her hand begged him to be seated. He sat down again, and my aunt looked out of the window, or at least she says she tried to, but she felt herself drawn irresistibly to look covertly at the gray bearded stranger. When the porter had arranged the stranger's section, and he arose and went to it, my aunt's eye followed him. She tried to speak to him as he went from her seat, but she didn't seem to be

"Sir, isn't your name Allison?" "The man looked surprised and said, 'Why, yes; my name's Allison.' " 'Charles Jasper Allison?'

" 'Yes,' said the stranger, looking still more surprised.

"'Didn't your sister Carrie used to call you Jass?" 'She did?' he exclaimed. 'But

"'Oh, Jass! I'm your sister Carrie!" exclaimed my aunt, and her arms were around the old man's neck and he was holding her to his breast, while both of them sobbed like a couple of children. "The long lost brother did not get off
